KAIN TAYO

ONE FOR YOU. ONE FOR SOMEONE WHO NEEDS IT.

Buy one extra serving of rice. Help make one more serving available to someone in your community.

HOW IT WORKS

1. BUY ONE EXTRA. When you order your meal, pay for one additional serving of rice at this participating food stall.

2. IT GOES INTO THE RICE BANK. The vendor records the prepaid serving in the daily tally. The payment stays with the vendor, who agrees to serve that portion when someone claims it.

3. SOMEONE CAN CLAIM IT. Anyone who needs a serving can ask for one. No ID. No registration. No questions. One serving per person per visit.

SHARE A MEAL. KEEP DIGNITY.

Ask the vendor how to buy an extra serving or claim an available one.

LOCAL PROJECT: _____

PARTICIPATING VENDOR: _____

PRICE OF ONE EXTRA SERVING: _____

Kain Tayo is a community-led mutual-aid initiative. Local organizers and vendors set the serving price and operating details together.

KAIN TAYO

RICE BANK

A PREPAID SERVING IS WAITING FOR SOMEONE.

TO GIVE: Add one extra serving of rice to your order. The vendor will record it in the Kain Tayo daily tally.

TO RECEIVE: Ask: “May Kain Tayo rice serving po?” If a serving is available, it is yours.

NO ID. NO REGISTRATION. NO QUESTIONS.

One serving per person per visit. For immediate consumption.

AVAILABLE SERVINGS TODAY: _____

Please ask the vendor for the current balance.

Thank you for keeping our community fed.

KAIN TAYO — DAILY VENDOR TALLY

Use one sheet per vendor per day. Record prepaid servings when they are purchased and mark servings as redeemed only when handed to someone.

CITY / PROJECT: _____

VENDOR / LOCATION: _____

DATE: _____ PRICE PER SERVING: _____

Time	Prepaid servings added	Servings redeemed	Running balance	Initials / notes

Opening balance: _____ Total added: _____ Total redeemed: _____ Closing balance: _____

Check: Opening balance + added servings – redeemed servings = closing balance.

START KAIN TAYO IN YOUR CITY

A practical launch checklist for a small, community-led pilot.

1. Find local food partners

Talk to two or three trusted carinderias, eateries, or food stalls. Explain the idea and agree on the price, serving size, redemption process, and how daily records will be kept.

2. Agree on simple rules

Keep the process easy: prepaid servings are recorded when purchased; redeemed servings are recorded when served; the available balance is updated daily. Decide locally whether to limit claims to one serving per person per visit.

3. Prepare a transparent ledger

Use the daily tally sheet in this pack or a shared spreadsheet. Keep the count of prepaid, redeemed, and available servings separate. Publish totals regularly without collecting recipients' names.

4. Display the signs

Print the public poster and counter sign. Fill in the local project name, vendor name, and serving price before displaying them.

5. Invite the community

Ask neighbors, students, local groups, and small businesses to participate. People can contribute by buying an extra serving, becoming a vendor partner, or helping with simple record checks.

6. Start small and review

Run a short pilot with a few vendors. Check the ledger with partners, ask what is working, and adjust the process before expanding.

Keep these principles: dignity first; no proof of poverty; no public identification of people receiving food; clear records; local ownership; no central kitchen or food warehousing required.

Local contact / organizer: _____

Project page / social link: _____

Adapt this toolkit to local food prices, laws, food-safety requirements, and community needs. Kain Tayo is a model, not a franchise.